

he had promised, and that he had not promised what he could not perform. The people appeared satisfied, except that a few wanted their money back, despite the fact that they were admitted to the hangar, where seven aeroplanes were assembled, willingly and free of charge.

When the crowds in the grandstand learned that no aviator would dare pit his life against the raging gale, they all streamed across the field and entered the hangar. Mr. Moisant explained the points in the delicate machines to all who made the request. Hamilton, Frisbie and Garros aided in the explaining. Barrier and Simon are not familiar enough with the English language, and they contented themselves with walking around and watching.

When they were asked to pose for photographs for The Times-Dispatch they were ready and willing, and Mr. Moisant, his two sisters and Mrs. Wupperman also graciously consented to pose for the photographer. As they were grouped against the southwestern end of the hangar, the crowd gathered in dense numbers, and watched Simon perform French antics while he was waiting.

A few minutes later Mr. Moisant gazed at the wind registering instrument, and saw the flights were hopeless. The people were informed, but were allowed to remain and look at the aeroplanes.

"I shall fly them to-morrow if I break a machine," said Mr. Moisant. My brother John B. Moisant, is expected here early Saturday morning, and he will ascend in a Bleriot. His own machine, which he is having constructed especially for his own use, is not yet finished, but he will use one of those we have here, and we have enough for every man. I trust that the people are satisfied. I couldn't send a man up to-day in the face of that wind. It would have been suicidal, and the cost of human life in the art of aviation has already been extensive."

John B. Moisant is the winner of the famous Statue of Liberty flight at Belmont Park, where he beat Claude Grahame-White, the renowned English aviator. Moisant is now regarded as one of the world's few peerless aviators. Garros will probably appear in his little Demoiselle, the trickiest and the least dependable aeroplane ever constructed. Barrier will go up in a Bleriot and Simon will follow. Hamilton and Frisbie will follow. Hamilton's machine, which was damaged by fire Wednesday afternoon, having been repaired.

To-day will see the last of the aviators. They go from here to Chattanooga, Ga., and thence to Memphis, from Memphis to New Orleans, and from New Orleans to Cuba. Mr. Moisant yesterday received a telegram from Memphis saying that the city would be decorated in honor of the aviator. The aviators, that the grounds would be given them free of rent, and that prizes ranging into thousands of dollars would be offered for spectacular flights. Here Mr. Moisant got nothing free, in sharp contrast to what is being offered him in other cities.

And he gave more than has been seen in any other city, for all the other meets were specially arranged, were given under the auspices of some aero club, and special prizes were offered for spectacular flights. In Richmond many of the wealthiest citizens remained on the outside in automobiles to watch the flights. In Baltimore a sick man gave $500 to see an aviator from his window.

Guests of Manager. Thursday, after all the aviators had performed, and Barrier had flown across the city, they were hungry and tired, and that night Mr. Moisant gave them a Thanksgiving dinner in the Jefferson Hotel. There were fourteen in the party. The table was decorated for the occasion, and the souvenirs were little images of the Statue of Liberty, with monoplanes, as if in the act of flying, arranged about it. The dinner was a tremendous success, and the French trio, who had never before eaten a Thanksgiving dinner in America, were especially pleased. They did not remain up long after the dinner, for flying demands a clear head, a steady hand and a careful eye.

To-day the largest crowd of the meet is expected, and the aviators are ready. Barring a storm that would make impossible any attempt at flying, all will appear, and end the meet with the most thrilling exhibitions yet seen.

Guilt of Manslaughter. Durham, N. C., November 25.—After twenty hours of deliberation, a jury to-day returned a verdict of manslaughter in the case of Lawrence Davis, who was charged with killing Braden Bragg last September. Both were men of prominent in this section.

The prisoner was not tried for first degree murder. It was alleged the two men had quarreled over a woman.

The Hanan Shoe.

We'd rather please your feet than you. Let your feet and us settle the shoe question, then you and your pocket can fight it out. These Hanan shoes may be a whole dollar higher than you've been accustomed to paying for shoes, but your feet, your comfort, your looks, will agree it's the best investment you ever put your foot into.

NEGRO MURDERER LYNCHED BY MOB

Spirited Away to Secluded Spot and Body Shot to Pieces.

Little Mountain, S. C., November 25.—With his body riddled with bullets, and a lantern hanging above his head, Flue Clarke, a negro, lies dead to-night on the side of Little Mountain. He was lynched at 10 o'clock for the murder and attempted assault on the fourteen-year-old daughter of a well-to-do planter of this section. The crime was committed this afternoon at 4 o'clock in the yard of the home of the girl, while she was alone. Her head was almost severed with a knife, following a fierce struggle with the negro. The negro was employed by the father of the girl, and had worked on the place for twelve years.

There were at least 1,000 men in the mob that completely eluded the officers of several counties, who had gone to the scene to get the negro. Following the crime, the negro came to the house and assisted in carrying the body of the child to the house. He was later spirited away to a secluded spot, after making a confession, it is alleged, to a small crowd.

The members of the mob were informed of the alleged confession. While the officers searched, the mob took another direction, coming upon the negro, and literally shot his body to pieces. This afternoon the mother left the girl alone in the house to visit a neighbor. Several moments after, the young brother of the girl coming home, found his sister near a cellar door. He gave the alarm. The father was in a field nearby. The news of the crime spread quickly over the counties, and a large crowd soon gathered. The negro, in his confession, is alleged to have stated that he went to the house to get water and asked the child to bring him some potatoes to the well. When she brought them, he made his murderous attack. He said that the girl screamed, and said she was going to tell her father. He then cut her throat.

An inquest will be held over the bodies of the girl and the negro to-morrow.

ASKS DRASTIC REGULATION.

National Grange Favors Greater Power Against Railroads. Atlantic City, N. J., November 25.—Resolutions calling for drastic regulation of all railroads of the country, giving the Interstate Commerce Commission power to nullify freight and passenger rates, were adopted this afternoon by the National Grange. Radical changes in the Payne-Aldrich tariff bill and physical valuation of railway trunk lines were also urged by the farmers.

BANK OFFICIAL ENDS HIS LIFE

Samuel T. Withers, of Lynchburg, Commits Suicide. Cause Unknown.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.] Lynchburg, Va., November 25.—Samuel T. Withers, aged fifty-five years, second vice-president of the First National Bank, and one of the best known and most highly respected residents of the city, shot and instantly killed himself this morning in his private ward in the Home and Retreat, where he had been under the treatment of his physician for two months.

Mr. Withers had been in bad health for months, and since last June he had been on an indefinite leave of absence from the bank. He spent some time out of the city in the hope of recuperating, but for the past two months had been under treatment at the Home and Retreat, and it was expected and hoped that in a short time he would be able to resume his duties at the bank. The last report was that this condition would prevail in a short time, and when the word came this morning at the bank concerning his death his former associates and fellow workers were almost overcome.

Death came as the result of a shot through the head, and the end was instantaneous. Shortly afterwards the body was removed to the home of Mrs. Charles M. Blackford, on Pearl Street, where it will lie until the funeral. Mr. Withers went to the First National Bank in 1897, when that bank absorbed the old Commercial Bank. He was cashier of the old bank, and was made teller with the First National, which place he held until last November, when a reorganization took place, at which time the position of second vice-president was created for him. He continued in the discharge of the duties of that position until he left for leave of absence last June. Even while on this leave of absence he kept in touch with the bank, and expected to return to work in a month or two.

He was a prominent and active member of the Piedmont Club and the Oakwood Club, until the past year or two, having been one of the most enthusiastic members of the Hunt Club, now a feature of the Oakwood Club. For several years he was treasurer of the Interstate Fair Association, having been one of the promoters looking to the organization of the present association.

Mr. Withers had an excellent income from his position, and from investments, while his personal estate is said to have been a very valuable one. Aside from melancholy, Mr. Withers

LABOR ORGANIZER ADVISED TO LEAVE

Feared in Tampa That He Would Be Harshly Dealt With.

PROTEST TO GOVERNOR

Present Strike of Cigarmakers Attributed to His Efforts.

Tampa, Fla., November 25.—J. C. Johnson, of Chicago, organizer for the International Cigarmakers' Union, who has been in Tampa about eight months, accepted the advice of the Citizens' Protective Committee this morning and left this city. It is said that no threats were made against the organizer, but it was feared he would be harshly dealt with.

Following the departure of Johnson, statements were wired to President Gompers, at St. Louis, in which it was alleged that Johnson had been ordered to leave the city. President Gompers made a protest to Governor Gilchrist, who referred the matter to Mayor McKay.

The present strike, involving nearly 10,000 workmen, is attributed indirectly to Johnson.

Statement by Gompers. St. Louis, Mo., November 25.—President Gompers declared that the union cigarmakers now imprisoned in the Tampa jail had to be guarded by their fellow union men to prevent a lynching.

"I have repeatedly asked the Governor," he said, "to investigate the trouble at Tampa, but he has always assured me that the matter was under control by the local authorities."

"I have furnished the Mayor of Tampa and the Sheriff there, as well as the Governor, with detailed information as to the seriousness of the situation, and have asked the Governor to investigate, but he tells me that he can act only in conformity with the laws and authority vested in him. That is all the satisfaction I can get."

"There never has been a time during the strike that the international officers of this federation were not willing to make an adjustment of this difficulty, but the manufacturers' association will not confer with us, we will put all of our strength into Tampa to win the strike of the cigar workers."

BILBO RESUMES TESTIMONY

Tells of Alleged Bribery in Mississippi.

Yazoo City, Miss., November 25.—State Senator Theodore Bilbo related in detail to a jury to-day circumstances which he declared led to his charge that L. C. Dulany paid him a sum of money in an effort to influence his vote during the senatorial caucus of the last Mississippi Legislature. In substance, it was a repetition of his testimony before the grand jury which returned the indictment charging Dulany with bribe-giving, and later at a legislative inquiry. Dulany is on trial in answer to the charge.

Senator Bilbo testified that he was approached by Dulany and offered $1,000 if he would change his vote from former Governor James K. Vardaman to the successful candidate, United States Senator Levey Percy. Acting in the role of detective, he declares he consented, but did not alter his vote. He made public the alleged bribery immediately after the senatorial contest ended.

REPORT WILL BE PROMPT.

House Committee Preparing to Meet Demands for Expeditions Work.

Washington, D. C., November 25.—House committees having charge of appropriation bills are preparing to meet the demand for expeditions work. The Committee on Indian Affairs promises to have the Indian bill ready to introduce on the first of the session, and a meeting of the Committee on Appropriations has been called for next Monday. The legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bills, and the District of Columbia bill, will be the first to receive consideration, and it is expected that they will be reported during the first week of the sitting. Just now it would appear that only a week's holiday at Christmas will be permitted the legislators.

MOTHER AND SON FATALLY INJURED

Leap From Burning Building and Picked Up Unconscious.

Boston, November 25.—In a wild scramble to escape from the flames which destroyed Young's Hotel at Winthrop Beach early to-day a mother and her son leaped from the windows and were so frightfully injured that probably neither can recover, the thirty-five remaining guests escaping uninjured. The hotel was burned to the ground, together with the garage in the rear and two adjoining cottages. Known as the Idle Hour and the Commonwealth, the total loss probably will be considerably in excess of $50,000.

The injured are Mrs. John C. Beggs and her son, John C. Beggs, Jr., aged seventeen years, of Springfield. They were asleep on the second floor of the building when the fire broke out, at 2 A. M. They rushed out into the hall and started down the stairs, but suddenly they turned back with the evident purpose of recovering something from their apartments.

When they returned the halls were filling with smoke, and thinking that escape was impossible save through the windows, they again retraced their steps, and, frantic with terror, jumped to the sidewalk below.

Both were unconscious when picked up. At the hospital to which they were taken it was found that their injuries would probably prove fatal. The boy sustained a fractured skull. Mrs. Beggs had both of her thighs broken, her right knee pan splintered and her left foot dislocated.

The fire was the most obstinate with which the Winthrop department has had to deal in years. Aid was sent from Boston and Revere, and not until 5 A. M. was the blaze under control. For a time the entire shore drove, in which the hotel was located, and which is lined with cottages, was threatened.

The blaze originated in a linen closet over the furnace.

Laredo, Texas, November 25.—There have been no developments to-day in the revolutionary situation, and quiet reigns throughout the Republic of Mexico.

General Lamro Villar, commanding the forces along the Mexican border, has received such advices covering every point from Matamoros to Ciudad Porfirio Diaz, and on the American side everything is quiet.

General Villar has learned that reports that a battle had occurred to-day in the neighborhood of Eagle Pass, and that Francis L. Madero had been wounded have been untrue. Several officers communicated with Colonel Pena at Ciudad Porfirio Diaz, and Colonel Pena declared the stories baseless. He also said no trace of Madero had been found.

Captain J. H. Rogers, of the Texas Rangers, who arrived from El Paso, Texas, this afternoon, and reports tranquility in that vicinity. He says that any force of revolutionists which might have been in the neighborhood have either taken to the brush or crossed the river into Mexico.

The ranger force of Captain Rogers, together with that of the United States marshal and the United States Army, still remains on the scene to prevent any violation of the neutrality laws.

Among the passengers arriving in this city to-night from Monterey was Joseph Villar, a Spanish attorney, Mr. Wheeler left Torreon, Mexico, Thursday evening, and said that at that time conditions were normal. Mr. Wheeler has large interests in Mexico, and says that the many stories circulated throughout the United States magnifying the importance of what he terms a minor uprising are seriously injuring business in the republic.

Opening Pennsylvania Station,

New York, Nov. 27, 1910

Commencing Sunday, November 27th, all trains to and from New York City via Pennsylvania Railroad, including those carrying Pullmans operated in connection with the Richmond, Fredericksburg and Potomac Railroad, will arrive at and depart from new Pennsylvania Station, Seventh Avenue and Thirty-third Street. This will effect considerable reduction in the through schedules via Pennsylvania Railroad, enabling passengers to reach the heart of New York City sooner and leave later and obviating the necessity of ferry transfer to and from Jersey City. Sleepers leaving New York on late trains via Pennsylvania Railroad will be open for occupancy in Thirty-third Street Station
